

VITAMIN "D" CAPTURED BY NEW PROCESS

Use of Sun-lamps Revolutionizes Breakfast Food Manufacturing

"Sunlight with milk or cream" has become a romantic breakfast reality for Edmontonians.

Translated into more scientific terms, the new process of "sunlight" to be irradiated under the sunblock process, has been placed on the market by the company that sells all grocery stores. The sunblock device is a lamp that, when used in particular, can be infused with the "sunlight" and expose them to the rays of sunlight as regards everywhere as one of the most important factors in the body.

Its flooding with ultra-violet rays the wheat grains of which, "Muffins," or other sun-lamps prepared breakfast foods are made, the sun-vitamin "D" of sunlight is captured and used in the food. The sun-vitamin at property found originally in a few foods, has been extracted and which assists the body to convert lime and other minerals into bone and teeth.

The application of the irradiation process to Muffins has been made by the method discovered by Dr. Harry Steens, a scientist at the University of Wisconsin at the University of Wisconsin for more than four years. Dr. Steens, who has been studying the physical principles in the relationship of light to food, has conducted extensive research on hundreds of animals in the laboratory and has found the value of the newly imitated vitamin. He found that the wheat grain contained a minimum of 1000 units of the rays of ultra-violet light, was damaged by the rays and that the rays of the sun added the body to retain the rays of the sun and assist the bone and tooth structure and repair.

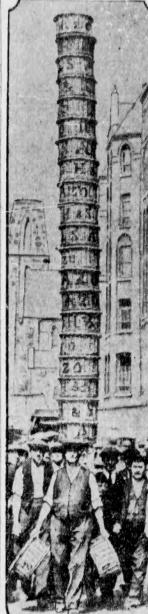

Quaker Oats First

When the announcement of this discovery was made, more than four parts of the Quaker Oats firm flew with requests to have their newly found process applied to their products. The reason he patented the discovery refusing however to accept personal profit from it, was that he wanted to make his rights to the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation available to all so that the process be used for further research and the betterment of human health. He further limited the assignment of patent rights to the Quaker Oats Company, the first company to use the new process and permission to use his irradiation process.

After two years of further research this company has now applied the Quaker Oats process to all of their whole wheat cereal. Thus far the company has been the only ones to imbued with vitamin D, by ultra violet.

Among the tests which were made preliminary to marketing Muffins was that of the Quaker Oats Company to see the cooking of Muffins whether they had lost any of the vitamin content. Nor does sunlight change the flavor and taste of the cereal unchanged. In fact nothing is added to the cereal except the sun-vitamin content. The natural nutritive value of the cereal is increased by the use of the sun-vitamin which promotes the complete assimilation of the mineral and protein grain.

WOULD KILL BILLBOARDS

Outdoor Advertising to be Subject of Attack in British Columbia

Canadian Press

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 25.—The British Columbia government has declared an unrelenting war on outdoor advertising, particularly on the highways and during the next few months will ban all billboards and hoarding displays, unless special road signs will direct them to be removed.

—"Jim" as he is known to most here carrying 20 baskets on his head and one in each arm. He has been a familiar figure in Victoria for many years and there was a large number of people who had a fond regard for him. That the season this year is a little more difficult for him.

In the live-stock classes the increase in the number of lambs shown was the best spring by girls and boys following the opening of the fair.

—The Victoria fair is the best in the country and the cattle show is also very good, but there might have been more entries. At the animal school that was held there were a large number of entries and the animals were well taken care of.

The government does not propose to ban all signs, however, but will put up by resort hotels or similar places for the convenience of those who have spent money on travel.

Much Number One Wheat on Market

GOOD QUALITY IN 1929 CROP REPORT SHOWS

Chemical Analysis Shows Wheat of Excellent Baking Crates

Canadian Press
WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 23.—Low protein content and lower water absorption of the flour and excellent quality of the wheat are the main summary report on the milling and baking qualities of the 1929 wheat crop in Canada. The Royal Canadian Millers' Association's 1929 wheat crop, based on the figures of the Royal Canadian Millers' Association, is the best in Canada, and as good as any ever grown.

Milling and baking tests conducted at the Royal Canadian Millers' Laboratory in Winnipeg, indicate that, in general, the wheat is of good quality, but the baking quality, grade by grade, is fully equal to, if not superior to, that of the total wheat crop. Dr. Birkhead, in the report.

On the whole, the wheat conditions under which the 1929 crop was grown, and the resulting immaturity are not as serious a concern as was found to be the case in the last year, when the wheat is sound and mature, but each grade contains a considerable amount of undeveloped kernels, and consequently the baking quality of the wheat would appear to be the chief concern in the baking grade.

Wheat Lower

The weight per bushel of each grade is decreasing, and is lower than in the previous year, as shown in the following table:

No. 2 Northern... 66.5 64.5

No. 3 Northern... 60.5 58.5

The weight per bushel of No. 1 hard wheat is 12.29 bushels per bushel.

Of the total number of cars of hard red spring wheat inspected to date, 29 per cent. No. 1 Northern, 39 per cent. No. 2 Northern, 22 per cent. No. 3 Northern, and less than 1 per cent. of the total weight can be expected under No. 1, 5 and 6.

It is to be noted that No. 1 hard wheat has not been expected for several years, but this season forms

WELCOME VISITORS

Edmonton is now a "C.P.R. town," as well as a C.N.R. town. The construction of the Willingdon line, the purchase of the Lacombe and North Western, and the acceptance of the joint ownership of the northern railways have given rise to the Canadian Pacific an interest such as it never had before in the progress of Edmonton and of the country upon which it depends.

A railroad is bound, for business reasons, to push the development of the territory in which it operates. The greater the investment it has made, the greater the incentive it has to help in promoting the development of the country. In the last year or so staked a good deal of money on this city and its tributary country; money on which it hopes to earn dividends. That investment is a guarantee to the Canadian that it will devote its energies to the advancement of settlement, production and trade throughout this area.

More than usual interest attaches on that account to the visit which is being paid to Edmonton today by President Beatty and a party of directors and important officials of the C.P.R. They would be welcomed in every case, and especially when the powerful corporations which they represent is bound to exert its influence more actively than ever before for the general advancement of this city and district.

We trust the Canadian Pacific has done for Calgary and other important points on its older system, and for the country through which it operates, as well as for the country traversed by its newly acquired lines. The people of Edmonton and of northern Alberta will be gratified by the extent of the Canadian's interests in this part of the province, and in the introduction of another powerful factor in making for progress and general prosperity.

It is fortunate for the west that there has been recently added to the directorate of the company Mr. James A. Richardson of Winnipeg and Mr. W. J. Blake Wilson of Vancouver, men of wide interests in western Canada and of great experience in western conditions and affairs, and that the company's business in this part of the Dominion is under the able direction of Mr. D. C. Concanan, vice-president of the large western lines.

The program of extension upon which the C.P.R. has entered in the west may be credited in general measure to the foresight and influence of these gentlemen, and under their supervision the good relations obtained between the company and the public will undoubtedly be maintained.

WORK FOR WINTER

It is estimated that the extension of the current year will cost the taxpayers of Edmonton about $25,000. The sum is not large, considering the size of the city and the conditions which have prevailed during part of the year, nor will it be grudged.

The unfortunate thing is that the giving of actual relief should ever be necessary. It is better always, to provide a man with a job than to give him a hand ticket. But the man who has to foot the bill, Stating the principle broadly, it is better that work should be provided for those who need it than that they should be supported while at work.

There is a reminder in this that the more work can be made available next winter the less will the taxpayers have to hand out for food, meals and beds, and the less will the suffering and the taxation for all concerned. This is the time to take thought to that end, especially with reference to the possibility of carrying on as much city work as can be done during the winter without seriously adding to the cost.

If the new grandstand project is approved, the old stand can be torn down and removed during the winter. This would provide work for quite a number of men for one winter. One Alberta city has for many years made it a practice to have gravel taken out and hauled during the winter, and to provide a convenient place for the storage over the streets and ways in summer. This, Red Deer, is remarkable for the good condition of its streets. It is a safe conjecture that the off season employment has been a boon to the quite a number of people, and that the tax-payers have faced better than that this has not been done.

Now is the time for Edmonton authorities to give attention in detail to such ways of providing winter employment, in the best manner possible. And to those arrangements that preference in any employment should be given to bona fide residents of the city.

Lucky Doungans

By GLENN FRANK

A distinguished Russian colleague of mine told me yesterday of a tantalizing tongue that is spoken in the Ferguson region of the territory now dominated by the Soviet Union.

It is a speech that one has to learn by heart, and you can only learn it by one of the existing written languages.

The people speaking this language are originally a Chinese folk in eastern Turkistan, who quarreled with their neighbors and migrated to their present home in the Soviet Union, a territory about a hundred years old.

The spoken language of the Doungans is a language that is spoken by the people of Anatolia, Turkey, Russia and other countries. Scholars have sought in vain to reduce this Doungan language to writing.

One of the main "talking blocks" in the way of reducing the language to writing is that the Doungan word sounds are sung rather than spoken.

The Doungan speech is thus, in part, a matter of musical pitch, not of mere pronunciation and no exact meaning can be given to the words.

Frost — Skid — Crash

The time is at hand when we must look for some sharp frost. One morning, after a spell of snow and sleet, we shall wake up to find the streets covered with a film of ice — then, look out.

It is not what you do, or avoid doing, you are not the only car driver on the streets, and anybody who drives a car knows how risky it is to guess what the other fellow is going to do.
